In the article entitled "Epitopes of streptococcal M proteins shared with cardiac myosin," by J. B. Dale and E. H. Beachey (August 1985, 162:583), the purified myosin used therein was incorrectly described as having been obtained from rabbit cardiac muscle. In fact, it was obtained from rabbit skeletal muscle. Because of the design of the experiments, however, this error does not affect the results or their interpretation.
